NOT YOUR LOCAL HUMANE SOCIETY

A 50-State Report on the Humane Society of the United States and its Lack of Support for America's Underfunded Pet Shelters

HUMANEWATCH.ORG

Keeping a watchful eye on the Humane Society of the United States

A PROJECT OF THE NONPROFIT CENTER FOR CONSUMER FREEDOM

INTRODUCTION

In a February 2010 poll conducted by Opinion Research Corporation, 71 percent of Americans agreed that the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) “is an umbrella group that represents thousands of local humane societies all across America.” And 59 percent believed that HSUS “contributes most of its money to local organizations that care for dogs and cats.”

Both of these statements are false. Despite producing a steady stream of television commercials and other fundraising materials that imply otherwise, HSUS is not affiliated with any of America’s more than 10,000 hands-on pet shelters. And in 2008, the most recent tax year for which nonprofit IRS filings are available, HSUS shared less than one-half of one percent of its budget with legitimate “humane societies” and other pet shelters.

This report documents HSUS’s grants to pet shelters in the 50 United States from 2006 to 2008. The data is drawn from HSUS’s tax filings with the IRS, documents which are in the public record.

During that three-year period, HSUS donated zero dollars to shelters in five states (Maine, Nebraska, Nevada, South Dakota, and Wyoming). And the organization’s total giving to pet shelters totaled less than $50,000 in each of 39 other states.

All told, HSUS’s total spending in these 39 states made up just one-fifth of one percent (0.2%) of HSUS’s total budget during this time. In those three tax years, HSUS spent nearly $280 million on salaries, lobbying, advertising, fundraising, and other programs. At the end of 2008, HSUS reported having over $162 million in assets.

HSUS itself acknowledges that between 3 and 4 million dogs and cats are euthanized in American shelters every year—about half of all pets that enter their doors. But while HSUS can clearly afford to tackle the problem head-on, it appears to have other priorities.

The Humane Society of the United States did spend $2.4 million on pet shelters in Louisiana between 2006 and 2008, mostly consisting of funds for constructing new facilities following Hurricane Katrina. HSUS could easily afford to follow this funding model in all 50 states and the District of Columbia; if it did, those expenditures would amount to roughly half of its annual budget—a noble goal.

However, HSUS—which is often erroneously referred to as our “national humane society”—routinely gives far less to the hands-on pet sheltering facilities that most Americans believe constitute its principal responsibility.

HSUS SHELTER HIGHLIGHTS

The Humane Society of the United States didn't make any donations to Ohio pet shelters in 2007 and 2008, and gave just $5,200 in 2006. This year, however, the organization is gearing up to spend millions of dollars in the Buckeye State on an anti-livestock farming ballot initiative.

From 2006 to 2008, HSUS made zero payments to pet shelters in Maine, Nebraska, Nevada, South Dakota, and Wyoming.

In 2008 HSUS made donations to pet shelter organizations in only 15 states—down from 34 states in 2007—even though its overall budget increased by more than $8 million.

HSUS routinely spends far more on state-level political fights than on pet shelters in those same states.

- HSUS spent 10 times more passing “Proposition 2” in California—a ballot initiative to create new livestock farming regulations—than on pet shelters there.
- In Massachusetts, the ratio was six-to-one (HSUS spent heavily on a ballot initiative to ban greyhound racing).
- In Colorado, a “humane farms” political committee got seven times as many HSUS dollars as the state’s pet shelters.
- In Michigan, HSUS spent 100 times as much money promoting a dove-hunting ban as it did on shelters.
- HSUS spent 300 times as much money sponsoring an Arizona “humane farms” ballot group as what it contributed to that state’s local shelters.

Despite the “United States” in HSUS’s name, it donated more to a veterinary hospital in India in just one year ($22,150) than it gave in three years to shelters in 31 different states: Alaska, Arizona, Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

HSUS SHELTER GIVING, STATE BY STATE

To compile this list, we examined the schedules of outgoing grants provided by the Humane Society of the United States as part of its "Form 990" nonprofit federal tax returns.

Each grantee was examined to find out if it met the basic qualifications of:

- being a hands-on animal care center;
- being concerned with the daily care, adoption, and/or rehabilitation of dogs and cats; and
- being located in the United States of America.

HSUS grantees meeting these qualifications were deemed to be "hands-on pet shelters" for the purpose of this report, and are listed below. In every case where we could not make a clear determination, we gave HSUS the benefit of the doubt and counted the grantee as a pet shelter.
