

What's HSUS fattening up with its donors' dollars?

Many people believe that the Humane Society of the United States gives most of its money to pet shelters, according to public polling.

In 2009, however, HSUS spent over $40 million to fuel its factory-fundraising machine. HSUS also put $2.6 million into its pension plan and maintained a bloated staff of 30 lawyers. Meanwhile, less than one percent of HSUS's budget went to pet-shelter grants.
